America

General Information of America

South America is one of the 7 continents on the planet. The majority of its position lies within the Southern Hemisphere, and geographers designate it as a subcontinent of the Americas. The Pacific Ocean borders South America to the west, and the Atlantic Ocean borders it to the east. The Caribbean Sea and the North American continent lie to the northwest.

Of the seven continents, North America is the third largest by land mass and the fourth largest by population. North America consists of twenty four countries, the largest by land mass being Canada. North America is home to over five hundred million people. The most populated city in North America is Mexico City, Mexico, where there are almost nine million people currently residing.

A Historical Region

The geographic area of South America encompasses over 6,890,000 square miles. The population estimates from 2013 exceed 386,000,000 people. As one of the 7 continents, South America ranks fourth in geographic size behind Asia, Africa and North America. It ranks fifth in total population behind Asia, Africa, Europe and North America.

The first North Americans are believed to be of Asian descent by crossing from North East Asia. The next settlers were of European descent, starting with the Norse and continuing with the English, Spanish, and French. Although Columbus is credited with discovering "The New World", America was named after Amerigo Vespucci who first explained that Columbus' journey was not to India but to an entirely different land mass. North America was then settled by all different groups of people, initially split between the English, French, and Spanish. Spain claimed the southernmost land while France claimed mainland America and England claimed northern territories and the east coast.

Geography

The South American continent contains many spectacular geographic sights. The highest waterfall in the world, Angel Falls, lies in Venezuela. In addition, South America contains the highest volume river, the Amazon, the longest mountain range, the Andes, and the driest area on the planet, the Atacama Desert. The Amazon Rainforest claims the title of the largest rainforest in the world, and Lake Titicaca remains at the highest altitude and is regarded as the most commercially viable lake in the world.

North America is divided into four main geographic regions: the Great Plains, Canadian Shield, East and the West. The Great Plains is a large area of grassland that stretched west of the Mississippi River and east of the Rocky Mountains in the central Canada and United States. The Canadian Shield, or the Laurentian Plateau, is a large plateau region made mostly from igneous (or lava) rock covered in soil. The East is characterized as everything east of the Appalachian Mountains, while the West is generally considered as everything west of the Rocky Mountains.

The highest point of North America is Mount McKinley, Alaska, which reaches to 6,194 meters above sea level. The lowest point of North America is Death Valley, California, which sinks to 86 meters below sea level. North America is bordered by the Atlantic Ocean in the east, the Pacific Ocean in the west, the Arctic Ocean to the north, and both the Panama Canal and South America to the South. North America's longest river is the Mississippi River, which runs from Northern Minnesota to the Gulf of Mexico. The largest freshwater lake in the world, Lake Superior, can be found in both Ontario and Minnesota.

We re-evaluated most of the things: our new name, new logo, office design, the exterior design of transportation, the brochures, billboards and launch a campaign to promote new company and image of the company. It was also now that we assumed the new slogan: “We just don't say the best, We do the best”

We ENDEAVOR TO BE RESPONSIBLE tour operator and respect nature and the environment we work in. Tourism is a key element in the global economy, but it also has its downside. Environmental protection is nothing new to us, which has been committing itself to environmental activities since 2000. Since then, we have regularly taken part in cleaning projects on various mountain paths that have been affected by intensive tourism.

We operate our own environmental cleaning projects to keep the environment neat, clean and green. We also organize ecology training and attract volunteers to participate in our environmental projects. Moreover, we aim to bring awareness to our employees on the necessity to care for nature and the environment.

We encourage activities such as reducing the use of paper, plastic and electric energy in office activities, re-use and recycling.

I have been thinking of opening a foundation like this for long and when I am settled mentally and financially I decided it’s the right prospect to announce our foundation, because for us charity begins at home.

The charitable sector is an imperative and captivating one, economically socially and culturally. Every one of the world’s great religions emphasises the moral imperative of charitable living. There is no code of ethics, whether religiously based or secular, that does not mandate the strong to look after the week, shares Sanyog.

We have made a start by planning, organising, directing, staffing and controlling and soon the project will hit the ground. We would be glad to be given any help from the corporate world to raise funds for the foundation.

Which style of trip is right for me?
Our three styles of travel – Basix, Original and Comfort – cover a whole gamut of travel experiences. To find out which one has ‘You’ written all over it, visit our trip styles page.

Are trips physically demanding?
Want to lie in a hammock and not move until cocktail hour? We've got a trip for that. Want to power up the side of mountain at high altitude? We've also got a trip for that. To determine what type of trip suits you best, each of our trips comes with a Physical Rating to let you know how physically demanding it is... or isn't. Find out more about ratings.

Does SGV have family trips?
SGV offers a wide range of Family Adventures around the globe. The minimum age (for Family trips) varies depending on destination, and SGV has set minimum ages to ensure that the included activities suit each age range. Additionally, you'll notice that some of the more adventurous destinations have a higher minimum age.

Who are SGV travellers?
SGV adventures are for travellers with a yearning to get off the beaten track. Whether you're travelling solo, with a group of friends, or are aged 18 or 70, there is an SGV adventure to suit your interests and comfort level.

Each SGV adventure has a physical and cultural grading to help you decide if the trip is right for you. No special skills are required for most adventures, just a sense of adventure and a curiosity about the world.

How many people will be on my trip?
Good things come in small packages, which is why we keep our group sizes down. This means we're small enough to remain flexible as we thread our way through communities without intimidating the locals. On most of our trips you’ll be part of an intimate group of 12-16 people, though our group sizes are on average 10 people. Our Overland trips are in purpose-built vehicles that can carry up to 24 travellers.

If I am travelling solo, will I be charged a single supplement?
As a solo traveller, you will usually have the choice of either paying a single supplement (available on the majority of trips), or sharing with someone of the same gender.

Are there age restrictions on your trips?
For the majority of our trips the minimum age is 15. An adult must accompany all children under the age of 18. Our Overland Adventures have a minimum age of 18. Younger children can join us on our Family trips and Short Break Adventures, but check each trip for its minimum age, which is located on the trip's overview page on the website. Most of our trips don't have a maximum age limit, but a Self-Assessment Form is required for all passengers 70 years and over.

Who will be my group leader?
While we can't tell you who your leader is prior to departure, we can tell you they will be awesome. Our leaders are experts in their regions, some because they've been travelling there for years, others because they're local to the region and can't wait to show you around. On longer journeys, or ones that travel through more than one country, you may change leaders part way through – but this just means double the awesomeness.

Can I just do part of the trip?
Although you won't be reimbursed for any portion of the trip unused, you can opt to sign off the trip if you need to leave a day or so earlier. If you let us know before travel that you'll be arriving late or need to leave before the trips ends, we will notify our team on the ground to best accommodate your requirements.

Can I make any changes to the itinerary of my group trip, either before or during the trip?
Please make sure you are happy with your group trip itinerary before booking because we are unable to change them for individual travellers. However, if you and a group of friends, colleagues or even your school would like your own personally designed itinerary, get in contact with our very talented Private Groups; they can tailor an itinerary just for you.

Can we book a triple room?
Depending on the trip style you choose, our trips are organised on a twin, triple or multishare basis. As our bookings are made well in advance, individual room requests can't be guaranteed.

Can I book a single room?
You can book pre and post accommodation on a single basis; however, throughout your Intrepid trip, rooming is organised on a twin-share basis. Some trips do have a single supplement available.
I have special dietary requirements – will they be catered for?
We will try our very hardest to accommodate all dietary requirements but in some out-of-the-way places it can be very difficult to guarantee. We will let you know if there are places on your itinerary where this is the case. Please let us know at the time of booking of any food requirements or allergies and we’ll pass the information onto your leader. It is also a great idea to bring a card with your dietary requirements written in the local language for those times you are eating away from the group.

What will the food be like on my trip?
Food is one of the most exciting parts of travel. There may be some familiar fare but often you’ll be confronted with the new, interesting and downright weird of the culinary world but, we like to think of it as an adventure for all the senses. In addition to this, our flexible itineraries often allow you to eat with the group or branch out on your own - this means you can eat to suit any budget or desire.

What type of luggage do you recommend I take?
On most SGV trips you will be required to carry your own luggage, sometimes up stairs and on and off transport. We therefore recommend you travel with a backpack. For a full list of what to take on your adventure see our Ultimate Packing List.

Can I store excess luggage at the starting point hotel?
Most starting point hotels can store your excess luggage for you; however, this is at your own risk. Often a nominal fee is charged for this service. Of course, this is only an advantage if your trip is circular (i.e. returning to the same starting point).

Do I need to bring a sleeping bag?
We only have a handful of itineraries where sleeping bags are required and these are generally trips that involve camping. When we use hosteys, blankets are provided but some travellers feel more comfortable with their own sleeping bag or sleep sheet. This decision is a personal preference. Refer to your Trip Notes if you are unsure whether a sleeping bag is required.

What clothes and footwear should I take on treks?
On a more physical trip, hiking boots are definitely recommended. If the physical rating is under 3, hiking boots or sneakers/runners will be adequate.

What essential documents do I need to take?
It's important that you always travel with your current passport, visas, travel insurance and SGV documentation.

What type of ground transportation is used?
If it moves, there’s a good chance you’ll be riding on it. The type of transport used depends on your trip style. Find out more or see your Trip Notes for the specific type of transportation used on your journey.

When is the best time to go?
There are many countries and variations of the seasons across South America, ranging from short, sub-zero days with tropical, 100% tropical humidity to warm beaches great for sunbathing.

Different seasons offer different benefits and options to the traveller and we’re happy to help and advise. Contact us for more.

Speaking very generally, the Andes in Peru, Bolivia and Ecuador are best for trekking between April and October.

Patagonia’s summer is the best time to visit (October to March), while the Galapagos Islands are pretty much a year-round destination.

The Amazon rainforest main ‘dry’ season is April to November, although can be visited year round.

How fit do I need to be?
In order to get the most out of the tour you should be in good physical condition.

We offer a very wide range of trips from day trips with hardly any walking at all in 21-day climbing expeditions at very high altitude.

It is not easy for us to grade the fitness levels required for all our trips, since most people’s fitness is a subjective matter.

However, we are happy to talk through what is expected of you on each trip we offer so you know what to expect. Having said that, most trips are easily within the reach of most people and the more extreme trips too, with some training.
